

YEAR'S END

In 1992, The Journal of Nuclear Medicine received nearly 800 original manuscripts for review. These manuscripts required the services of hundreds of individuals, who provided over 1200 individual reviews.

Our reviewers are very dedicated individuals. The task of a reviewer for The Journal of Nuclear Medicine is not limited to the critical assessment of the value of a particular work: these individuals also are encouraged to act as advocates for the manuscript with the editorial office. Reviewers also enhance the quality of articles appearing in the Journal by offering specific advice to authors about approaches for improving the utility and presentation of their work. For these and many other reasons, we owe these individuals a debt of gratitude.

On behalf of The Journal of Nuclear Medicine, we salute you.
