

The officers of the Society of Nuclear Medicine and the staffs of the society and The Journal of Nuclear Medicine extend their sympathy and support to those most affected by the recent natural disaster. Our profound respect and thanks go out also to our colleagues in nuclear medicine and throughout the medical sciences who gave and are giving so freely of their time and skills to help those injured in body and spirit.